

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. It should not be used for partisan issues unless they give both sides. If they run Stolen Honor, they must also run Going up the River which gives the other side of the story so the public can decide for themselves

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. Thank you. Judith Luke
